

EIA000996 Historic Environment Supplementary Planning Document

About your EIA

Reference Number:	EIA000996
Subject of EIA:	Historic Environment Supplementary Planning Document
Description:	There is a commitment in the Birmingham Development Plan for the Council to produce a Historic Environment Supplementary Planning Document. The SPD will fill gaps in policy and procedure for the management of heritage assets in Birmingham. This is guidance on changes to historic buildings and places and upon development that might affect archaeological remains. It will also replace existing planning guidance documents that are over 20 years old. The cabinet report will seek approval to adopt the new SPD and cancel the old outdated documents.

Data Sources

Data sources:	["Consultation results","Knowledge from providing the service to customers"]
Data sources Details:	A public consultation was undertaken on the SPD, the results are available in the appendix of the Cabinet Report, None of the feedback was related to equality issues and was largely concerned with quite technical heritage related matters. A lot of our knowledge is derived from experience and day to day contact with customers. I cannot think of an occasion where equality has been an issue when offering advice or making planning decisions on heritage matters.

Monitoring

Monitoring Details:	As the document is providing guidance on historic buildings and archaeology, i think it is very unlikely that there will be any adverse impacts upon people with protected characteristics or underserved groups. The SPD is most likely to be reviewed and amended when there are changes to the local development plan or the National Planning Policy Framework that affect heritage issues. These are hard to predict and may happen at quite lengthy intervals but it is intended to review the SPD after two years to ensure the advice and processes are working and effective.
